4TH ANNUAL SUMMIT ON
INNOVATIVE PHILANTHROPY
+ SOCIAL ENTREPRENEURSHIP

INFORMATION
+ PROGRAM

JULY 23-26, 2014
UNITED NATIONS
WELCOME, NEXUS MEMBERS.

We are incredibly excited to welcome you to the 4th Annual Nexus Global Youth Summit on Innovative Philanthropy & Social Entrepreneurship!

In the past year Nexus has hosted summits and salons in Europe, South Africa, Thailand, Singapore, Australia, China & Mexico. By participating in the Global Summit you are officially Nexus Members, joining an international community of more than 2000 young philanthropists, social entrepreneurs and influencers from over 70 countries working to address societal issues and to increase and improve philanthropy and impact investing.

You were selected to participate in the summit because of your energy, passion and commitment to making the world a better place. We hope you will use these four days to share the issues that matter most to you, the projects you are working on and the stories of youth in your countries. We know you will learn from one another and building meaningful relationships, friendships and collaborations.

Past summits have inspired innovative efforts to fight hunger in Latin America, address the organ donor shortage in the US, develop imaging systems that scan for skin cancer and launch Australia’s first social impact retirement fund. The possibilities of what this network can do together are infinite and we look forward to hearing about all the new projects and new partnerships that are formed thru Nexus!

With admiration & affection,

Rachel Cohen Gerrol & Jonah Wittkamper
Co-Founders
Nexus Global Youth Summit

SPECIAL THANKS TO: UNITED NATIONS OFFICE FOR PARTNERSHIPS

The United Nations Office for Partnerships (UNOP) promotes valuable alliances and partnerships worldwide. Working with corporations, philanthropic foundations and civil society organizations, the Office seeks ways to leverage their skills in leadership, management, technology and innovative delivery systems to help achieve the Millennium Development Goals. It also provides a platform for policy dialogues to effectively address global challenges. From children’s health to women’s engagement to education for all, the Millennium Development Goals are the heart of the work the UN Office for Partnerships.

UNOP also oversees the United Nations Democracy Fund (UNDEF) and the United Nations Fund for International Partnerships (UNFIP). UNDEF funds projects that strengthen the voice of civil society, promote human rights and encourage the participation of all groups in democratic processes around the world. UNFIP works with the United Nations Foundation to support its role as funder of projects delivered by the UN, an advocate for the United Nations and a platform for connecting people, ideas and resources to help the United Nations solve global problems.
summit themes

At Nexus, the majority of our breakout sessions are designed to be export-led conversations. We hope that each member will share their experience, knowledge and questions as this fosters deeper connection, collaboration and learning, and thus makes the Nexus community stronger. In celebration of all the experience and wisdom of the Nexus membership, we have invited select Nexus members to serve as advisors and help curate tracks around 4 key themes at this year’s Summit.

FILM
Film is a powerful tool to inform, inspire and activate people to ignite social good. Film connects viewers to characters all over the world, and allows them to empathize with the experiences of those they would never otherwise meet. This track will share some of the most inspiring stories and people we’ve come across this year. We invite you to come, watch and discuss. We challenge you to learn, empathize and feel called to action. We are proud that in select sessions the filmmakers are Nexus members who will be present to talk about their work.

Film Track Chair: Amanda Cole

IMPACT INVESTING
Impact investing is a relatively new field based on an old and proven idea: that the market does more to change human behavior than anything else. What if you could start investing your money for both social, environmental and financial returns? Come explore the challenges, opportunities, and benefits of all the new ways to invest in changing the world.

Impact Investing Track Advisor: Abigail Noble, Head of Impact Investing Initiatives, World Economic Forum

INVEST IN YOURSELF (IY)
This year, Nexus is pilot launching its Invest in Yourself Initiative! The focus of this initiative is to design, facilitate, and curate opportunities to identify our purpose and values, and promote our own social, emotional, and physical well-being in order to ensure more sustainable, purposeful, and joyful lives of meaningful impact. Join the IY team in six sessions that focus on health, well-being, purpose, authenticity, communication and collaboration.

Track Co-Founders: Mikuax Rai, Katie Greenman, David Chang, Claudia Weiss

PHILANTHROPY
Philanthropy is the act of giving charitably with strategy. The first step to being a great philanthropist is to take time to reflect on how you want to change the world. Explore your passions, interests and goals, then align them with organizations or projects with thinking similar to your own. Throughout this track, we’ll explore how to find your passions, partner with the projects that you care about, and how to know when it’s working.

Philanthropy Track Chair: Mary Galeti, Vice-Chair, Tefcovas Foundation

TRAFFICKING
The Nexus Human Trafficking and Modern Slavery Working Group aims to mobilize resources and individuals to invest in high impact solutions that address the root causes of human trafficking and combat modern day slavery. We will be exploring leveraging the unique skills, talents and access of Nexus members to change international policy, promote partnerships among and between civil society and governments, explore options for social impact investments in this space, and end the plight of slaves and human trafficking victims.

Trafficking Track Chairs: Melissa Jane Kronfeld, Diana Mao and Patrick Gage

Film For Good: The Business of Making Movies That Matter

Conference Room 2
FILM

Filmmakers are social conduits reflecting and commenting about society and the times and undoubtedly have the opportunity to tell stories that inform, incite, and inspire awareness of social issues. When paired with strategies which provide clear opportunities for audiences to take action, film can create tangible social change. During this session, you will learn from industry insiders various ways to conceive, fund, and develop socially impactful films, and you will hear the stories of two filmmakers who took unconventional paths to creating and developing stories that promote positive social change.

Erin Bernhart (Creative Activist, PeaceTree Productions)
MaryBeth Minnis (Film Producer and Mentor)
Amanda Cole (Strategic Media Coordinator, Nexus)
Sandi Dubowski (Outreach Director, Good Pitch)

Stateroom B
TRAFFICKING

Thousands of people are fighting modern-day slavery, but what are they doing? On the heels of our three-month call series, the Nexus Human Trafficking and Modern Slavery Working Group invites you to explore the anti-trafficking field and discuss what is being done today and what can be done in the future to abolish slavery. This interactive conversation, led by Working Group Co-Chair Diana Mao, will highlight organizations combatting human trafficking and give us an in-depth look at the current state of the movement.

Kayla Brochu (Senior Director of Programs and Head of Anti-Slavery Work, Geneva Global)
Diana Mao (Co-Founder, Nomi Network)
Ben Skinner (Co-Founder and SVP, TAU Investment Management)

Economic and Social Game Changers

Stateroom D

In this interactive session, we will explore key socio-economic issues that are important to the mission of NEXUS. Topics will include the raging debate over income and wealth inequality, signs of a decline in the rate of entrepreneurship, and the demographic impact of half of the world aging rapidly while the other half gets younger. Our objective is to illuminate the challenges presented by these potential game changers, and consider how focused philanthropy and social entrepreneurship can make a difference.

A Journey Into the Future of Consumption

People are multiplying but resources are not. As we approach eight billion people on the planet, it’s clear that how the world consumes today will not be sustainable for much longer. In recent years, we’ve seen the rise of ethical business (ex: TOMS, Warby Parker), 3-D Printing innovations in manufacturing, and the emergence of the sharing economy transforming ownership and micro-work (ex: Airbnb, Uber). The combination of these game changing technologies will make up the future of consumption. Perhaps they will also allow for a shift towards a modern consumer lifestyle that is calibrated with the planet. Join us for a discussion of what that might look like.

PHILANTHROPY

There are countless good causes. People across the globe suffer from every hardship, heartbreak and injustice imaginable. Stories pull at our heartstrings and open our purse-strings. Giving is easy. The question is how can we work to be smarter about those gifts and make a more significant impact. The answer lies in identifying our true passions and understanding the causes we are passionate about on every level and from every angle. Giving when you find your sweet spot makes the time, energy and money spent more impactful for both the donor and the recipient! This highly interactive conversation will give you the tools to get to the root of the issues you truly care about so your giving can be strategic and powerful.

No Progress without Peace: The Role of Philanthropy in Preventing Deadly Conflict in the Middle East

The formula of the World Summit that created the Millennium Development Goals is as true today as it was a decade ago. There is no peace without development, no development without peace. The prevention and resolution of deadly conflict is a prerequisite for all philanthropic advances in health, social justice and poverty alleviation. This discussion will focus on the important role that philanthropy plays in stemming the tide of violent conflict, as seen through the work of the International Crisis Group, its supporters and its partners in the international community. It will focus specifically on conflicts in the Middle East and North Africa, and its broader lessons for other regions.

BREAKOUT 4

BREAKOUT 4.1

Rising Women, Rising World: Creating a World That Works for Everyone

Conference Room 2

At the end of October 2013, a group of 20 eminent women leaders from all continents—each one a specialist in her discipline—economics, governance, education, environment, science, business, arts, media, indigenous cultures or religion—met in a Quaker manor house in the UK over the course of five intensely packed days. The group's purpose was to reflect on the state of the world and begin to design an emerging future, with the intention of imagining the contours of a world that would benefit all living beings and be harmonious with the needs of the planet. Rather than an exercise in utopianism, this was rooted in individuals' expertise garnered from leadership in some of the most violent and challenging parts of the world: Palestine, Zimbabwe, South Africa, Georgia, India, China, Lebanon, and Syria. The global initiative now developing explores pragmatic possibilities for a world where decision-making is based on more humane values than those that dominated the 20th century. Ours is a call to action, a call to develop and use the inner power and self-knowledge that can ensure that the outer actions we undertake are effective in creating a world that works for all. This conversation will explore some of the programs and models the emergent group, Rising Women Rising World is developing with millennials, artists, philanthropists, entrepreneurs and educators, and invite all of us to get involved.

So Far Yet To Go: Supporting LGBT Equity

DDR 7-8

For decades, the LGBTQ community has organized around issues of equity, equality and justice for all. In the last 10 years, there have been significant gains, but there is so much left to do. This interactive discussion will celebrate the victories, and explore some of the areas where there is still work to do, including equal access, and equal rights globally.

Hacking Cultural Myths to Unleash Your Purpose

DDR 6

Ever more people today have the means to live, but no meaning to live for. - Victor Frankl

Often, societal and cultural paradigms celebrate and promote image and surface-level realities to the detriment of meaning, and deeper purpose. Popular Culture is an agreement that we consciously or unconsciously opt into in order to relate to each other. It connects us in so many ways; shared sets of stories, ideas, beliefs, values, worldviews, and reference points. In this session, break free of cultural myths that often keep us from living our entire lives to the fullest and explore how to make our most meaningful impact and contribution. Together, session participants and panelists will address the incoherence between what we think we were supposed to be, according to cultural conditioning, and what is really true for us, in our heart and soul.

Personal and Planetary Ecology: Building A New Operating System

DDR Room 6

Our world is changing so rapidly that many populations have disconnected from the wisdom of indigenous world views. This session asks us to explore the global ecology as it relates and intersects with our own ecology, and consider the wisdom and perspectives that can help us achieve a sustainable and harmonious design of both the individual person and the planet. Hosted by Nexus’ Invest in Yourself team, join Memnosyne Institute co-founder and president Mary Ann Thompson-Frenk and Center for Planetary Culture founder and thought leader Daniel Pinchbeck in a breakout conversation meant to help each of us further understand our global status, and inspire each of us to positively engage in and influence the transformations being called forth by necessity.

DDR 7-8

In June alone — important conversations on impact investing were held at the Vatican with the Pope, and at the White House with cabinet officials, as well as in London with the culmination of a yearlong effort of the G7 Social Impact Investing taskforce. Several key recommendations were put forth after extensive consultation, and many good ideas were surfaced. Yet for us to see them through to fruition, collaboration and input is necessary. This session will provide an overview of those events, and offer an interactive opportunity for you to ask questions, offer ideas and feedback.

Breakout 6.1
Philanthropy and Global Charity Law

DDR West Terrace

In the next 50 years, philanthropy and the non-profit sector will become one of the world’s largest industries. While most charities and foundations are public, some of the world’s largest are anonymous. Some operate as for-profit companies while others serve as offshore trusts. IKEA founder, Ingvar Kamprad, left Sweden, put his ownership of the company in a Dutch foundation and put the intellectual property rights in a Lichtenstein entity. He is not alone, but what is next? How much will philanthropy grow? What legal options do philanthropists and investors have when they want to do good but their countries are unstable? How can they invest and donate locally and overseas without double taxation? When and where are for-profit or non-profit legal structures most effective? What about B-Corps, insurance policies, and other alternative financial structures? Come and learn about global charity law.

Breakout 6.6 An Intergenerational Look at Indigenous Cultures Today: Why their Knowledge Can Help the World and the Challenges They Face

Stateroom B

Did you know the Houma Tribe predicted Hurricane Katrina? Did you know the Dogon Tribe knew that Sirius was a binary star before the telescope was invented? Did you know there are hundreds of medicines in the Yucatan which people travel the world to receive help from? Did you know that the ancient Tolteca and Maya had mathematics that was more accurate than the type we use today which modern architects like Fernando Romero used to create the Soumaya Museum? Did you know that there are indigenous people living on every continent who, because of their centuries of intimate knowledge with their lands have cultivated unique accomplishments in the fields of medicine, mathematics, architecture, music and more? As humanity faces unique challenges today, the relevance of the knowledge indigenous people possess and have sustained despite historical genocides, infringements on their human rights and loss of their lands, has become all the more relevant.

Breakout 6.7 Innovations in Impact Investing: Spotlight on Social Impact Bonds

Stateroom C

IMPA CT INVESTING

Impacting Investing – the investment approach which intentionally targets measurable social and financial returns – has gained traction as a sector that offers innovative solutions to pressing societal problems. The Social Impact Bond (also known as Pay for Success) movement has grown considerably in recent years with over 15 US jurisdictions and 10 countries active. Yet there are many myths about SIBs (e.g. they are not actually bonds), various challenges (e.g. setting them up successfully is an art), and a plethora of untapped opportunities (e.g. how can they solve unemployment and education gaps?). This conversation will bring together leading practitioners in the Social Impact Bond space to answer the big questions facing the SIB sector, as well as what they might mean for your community’s future.
